EXAMINER'S AMENDMENT

1. An examiner's amendment to the record appears below. Should the changes and/or additions be unacceptable to applicant, an amendment may be filed as provided by 37 CFR 1.312. To ensure consideration of such an amendment, it MUST be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee.

Authorization for this examiner's amendment was given in a telephone interview with Elizabeth Waiguchu on March 30, 2006.

The application has been amended as follows:

In the claims:

Claim 25 (currently amended)

An exercise device comprising:

an 'H' shaped rigid frame comprising a base to rest upon a floor surface, said base comprising a pair of side base bars of equal length and a transverse base bar extending between said side base bars, said pair of side base bars each having a left side and a right side, each left and right side base bar having a front side and a rear side, said left and right side base bars generally parallel to each other where said transverse base bar comprises an elongated bar having opposing ends generally perpendicularly fixed to the midpoint of said left side base bar at one end and at the midpoint of said right side base bar at the other end, a pair of planar posts comprising a first planar post and a second planar post wherein each said first and second planar post extends upwards in a curve, said first planar post levels off at a peak where said first planar post attaches to the front of the left side base bar and the second planar post levels off at a peak where said second planar post attaches to said front of said right base bar.

a rectangular sitting component frame fixed at a first side to said first planar post at a midpoint of said first planar post and said rectangular sitting component frame fixed at said first side to said planar post to an end of said first planar post, and said rectangular sitting component frame fixed at a second side to said second planar post at a midpoint of said second planar post and fixed at said second side to said second planar post at an end of said second planar post, a horizontally disposed rectangular shaped seat secured to said rectangular sitting component frame where said seat is adjustable by moving simultaneously said rectangular sitting component frame horizontally at said first side and said second side, a pair of parallel inclined seat support bars, a first horizontally disposed bar secured to said pair of planar posts, a second horizontally disposed bar secured to said pair of parallel inclined seat support bars.

a seat restraint selectively attached to said rectangular sitting component frame to prevent a user from sliding off the seat during abdominal exercises.

Art Unit: 3764

Claim 29 (currently amended)

The exercise device according to claim 25 wherein said first horizontally disposed bar further including a pair of opposing ends, wherein a first horizontally disposed bar first opposing end is secured to said first planar post and said first horizontally disposed bar second opposing end is secured to said second planar post, said first horizontally disposed bar having an inner member and an outer member whereby said bar restrains movement of a user's feet during abdominal exercises by placing the feet of a user behind said bar.

Claim 30 (currently amended)

The exercise device according to claim 25 wherein said rectangular sitting component frame includes a means for attachment to said first planar post at said peak and a means for attachment to said second planar post at said peak.

Claim 31 (currently amended)

Lines 6, 8, 11 and 13, "at a 45 degree angle" has been cancelled.

Claim 33 (currently amended)

Line 2, "a member" has been changed to –an inner member and an outer member".

Line 5, INSERT after "exercise." –, said bar rigidly secured perpendicularly to said pair of inclined seat support bars.—

Claim 36 (currently amended)

Line 4, "restrain is a" has been changed to --restraint comprises a--.

Cancel claims 26-28, 35 and 37-46

2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: Although the prior art of Seidentop et al shows a gravity traction apparatus having an adjustable frame with a generally rectangular seat and a pair of inclined supports; Washington shows a device having an H-shaped frame; Fitzpatrick shows an exercise stand having an H-shaped frame, inclined supports and a rectangular seat; Breibart et al shows a pilates chair having a base, rectangular seat supported by a plurality of posts; but, the prior art of record fails to teach or suggest an obvious combination of an exercise device having a pair of planar posts comprising a first planar post and a second planar post wherein each post extends upwards in a curve, and levels off at a peak where the first planar post attaches to the front of the left side base bar and the second planar post levels off at a peak where the post attaches to the front of the right base bar, and a
a rectangular sitting component frame fixed at a first side to the first planar post at a midpoint of the first planar post and the rectangular sitting component frame fixed at the first side to the planar post to an end of the first planar post, and the rectangular sitting component frame fixed at a second side to the second planar post at a midpoint of the second planar post and fixed at the second side to the second planar post at an end of the second planar post, where a horizontally disposed rectangular shaped seat is secured to the rectangular sitting component and the seat is adjustable by moving simultaneously the rectangular sitting component frame horizontally at the first side and second side, and further having a pair of parallel inclined seat support bars, and a first horizontally disposed bar secured to the pair of planar posts, and a second horizontally disposed bar secured to the pair of parallel inclined seat support bars as recited in claim 25.
